FINDING STEADY EMPLOYMENT

Written by C. C. Leel, Secretary Manufacturers' Club.

The advance or retrogression of industrial San Antonio is clearly in the hands of its purchasing public.

The growth of any city depends upon the number of men and women it is able to support, and the influx of additional people it can attract.

People with private incomes are in the vast minority, and without such income it is imperative that the average citizen find steady employment, or else be compelled to try his luck in some other city.

Wholesale houses, corporations, municipal governments and retail stores can only furnish work for about one half of the working population. It therefore remains for the industries of a city to find employment for the other half.

Factories cannot employ men and women unless the manufacturers have jobs for them, and there are only sufficient jobs to furnish employment for a force of men or women necessary to make the goods which can be readily disposed of.

Factories only experience demand for their goods according to the orders they receive from the jobbers and retail stores.

Retailers buy goods from the factories only in response to the demand of the public. Their endeavor is always to supply the brands demanded by their customers.

Therefore it is clearly up to the purchasing public to ask for San-Antonio-made brands, if it wishes to do its share towards furnishing means of employment for at least one-half of the workers of San Antonio.

The Economical Way
It is very easy and simple to cook with gas. It is also economical. Let one of our representatives explain to you how inexpensive it is to cook a meal by gas. Gas is the power product for the kitchen, for the laundry, for ironers and labor-saving appliances and does away with the drudgery of housekeeping.

SUPPORT THE HOME FACTORIES

(By Allen D. Albert, President of the International Association of Rotary Clubs and Student of Cities.)

"Industrial workmen employed in San Antonio number 3519. This number would be an economical proportion to a city of 36,000 inhabitants. Your city offers only one-third enough jobs for a city of its population. You haven't enough factories, although there is no reason why there should not be. All of the factors needed to make factories exist are here; raw materials, fuel for power, labor and a market. Wool, cotton and lumber abound in this territory. Gas, commercial lignite coal and oil are to be had, and cheaper than in Minneapolis, which has achieved manufacturing eminence. Labor is too plentiful for the present available jobs and marketing facilities are practically unlimited. Beginning on a small scale with a variety of small manufactories would result in ultimate success as an industrial city.

"As it is, one out of every three of your mechanically inclined young men must leave home to find work. Such a condition is a serious liability to the city's future."
